Tri-County Literacy Council offers a Trading Post Library.

The wooden weatherproof structure is located at the front of the agency at 101 Second Street West. It is a popular pay-it-forward lending library whereas community residents “Take a book and leave a book”.

Bringing the project to fruition involved the help of volunteer craftsman, Gerry Godard (pictured), who built the structure, Home-Depot who donated the materials, and Sign-It who provided the signage.

Drop by often and peruse the selection of books which changes regularly, thanks to its many Trading Post Library participants and community donators.
