

YouTube for Fun or Profit Class Learner Testimonial

Jody's Story

How I came about my first YouTube video!

It was in late October 2020, 90% or more of my business was down due to Covid-19.

I just happened to be at our local Job Zone d'emploi in Cornwall, looking over some temporary options, and mentioned that I thought it was time for me to bring my business into the 21st century via online lessons, YouTube etc. At that point Sheri who is a consultant at Job Zone, had mentioned I should get in touch with Tri-County Literacy Council. I called and introduced myself and left some information of what I was looking for.

You know what they say, when you “put it out to the universe”... I received a call from Tri-County Literacy Council letting me know that there was a YouTube course starting called “YouTube for Fun or Profit”. I signed up and was very excited.

The Rythym Room offers drum lessons/workshops such as djembe drumming and hand drumming, as well as guitar lessons and crystal singing bowl meditations.

Toward the end, I made a YouTube video promoting my business called “The Rythym Room” which I uploaded and posted on Facebook, LinkedIn, and Twitter. It was only a few days later that as a result of the upload I had a new student signing up for drumming and had my first online music lesson on December 15th.

The course was amazing, along with our instructor Danielle.

Jody Marsolais has been teaching drums for over 20 years and is certified through Vic Firth, an industry leader in drum and percussion education.

With all the great content of the course, as well as the various resources given to us, I found myself becoming once again very motivated, passionate and a fire burning to move forward. Overall, our three-week course had not only met, but surpassed my expectations and I would recommend it to anyone!
